

Please address unsolicited pornography sent e-mail. Graphic language is posted in the subject line. Graphic, full view photos are displayed along with the warnings of adult content. My server has been unable to stop it and the things they have told me to try, has been of no use. The internet has so much good to offer. It is a shame to let sites like these, turn people away from what could be, a very rewarding experience.

Can no rules be applied to such pornographic materials? Are they allowed to send such filth into homes without a person requesting it? If I liked this sort of thing, I should have the right to view it. But I am not given the choice. It is being sent to me without my request or permission.

Sincerely,
Sherry Hooker